Buzz Likes Bees

After lunch, I went out to play. I saw Buzz in the playground. Buzz was a boy. He was eight years old, but he was very big. He was by the flower bed.

“Do you want to pick a flower?” I asked.

“No,” he said. “I want to eat a bee.”

That was funny. His name was Buzz and he ate bees.

“That must be a joke,” I said. “You like to eat bees? Don’t they sting you?”

“No, I bite them first.”

“How do you catch a bee?”

“I catch them myself, like this.” He held a bee by the legs.

“Please stop,” I said. “Don’t hurt the bee. I like bees very much.”

“I like bees, too. They taste like honey.”

“I have something better.”

“What?” he asked. “Tell me.”

“Let the bee fly away and I will give you a cookie.”

“Okay,” he said. He let the bee go. I gave him a cookie. “I made the cookie myself,” I said.

“Thank you. You make very good cookies,” Buzz said.
